IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

The week of July 18, 1871, was one of the typical summer months when the news of vital importance is scarce. A Springfield make, being 21 shots a minute, remarkable similarity in the weather conditions of 50 years ago and those of today are noted as half a century ago the same unsteady, stormy weather prevailed with a hard thunder and lightning storm that worked havoc in this vicinity. There were several accidents and one case of drowning to break the monotony of the week. Several excursions, marred by rain, were held.

July 17, 1871—The 3.30 clock train on the Norwich and Worcester road narrowly missed being derailed on the sharp curve near the toll bridge Saturday morning. It was only the presence of mind of the engineer that saved a serious accident. As the train rounded the curve the engineer saw that the switch near the roundhouse was open. He threw the train into reverse and whistled for brakes and the train was stopped after two cars had passed over the open switch. John Murphy, a youngster, was arrested for the opening of the switch but protested his guilt.

July 18, 1871—Mrs. J. A. Fargo of Laurel Hill with her sister, Mrs. Smith, was driving over the temporary bridge at Norwich Town when the horses became frightened and kicked the wagon over the side where there is no railing. The carriage dragged the horses with it, all landing in the water below. The ladies were unhurt but the horses were severely hurt and the carriage completely wrecked.

July 20, 1871—A slight earthquake was felt in various parts of New England about 1 o'clock yesterday. It was noticed by several persons in this city and one gentleman of Laurel Hill was awakened by the rattling of the doors.

The season at the coast watering resorts is extremely late and few houses east of New London have their usual number of guests. Hotel keepers are disappointed and disgusted but look to August for the harvest.

July 22, 1871—Kimball, the alleged Hanover bond thief, was brought before Justice Colvin at Baltic Thursday. He pleaded not guilty and was put under bonds of $500 and bound over to the September term of the superior court.

By his request he was taken to Hanover and while there secured a razor with which he cut his throat. It is thought that he cannot survive.

What are again hanging around Block Island as another school was recently seen in that vicinity.

The police have slain one or two of the unmuzzled curs that infest the streets. It was done by a police in a purely private, disinterested way, with no ostentations of law, but it is a cheering mark of progress.
